

A PEER REVIEW

The review process for this journal is conducted twice anonymously. The editor will first determine if each submission is appropriate for the journal. Papers that are judged appropriate are subsequently normally sent to at least two independent, experienced reviewers who will evaluate the paper's scientific merit. The Editor is in charge of making the final determination regarding whether or not an article will be accepted. The Editor's choice is binding. Editors are not involved in choices on papers that they have authored, have had authored by relatives, friends, or coworkers, or that are about goods or services in which the editor has an interest. Such submissions must follow all journal policies and be subject to peer review that is conducted without the involvement of the appropriate editor.

DOUBLE ANONYMOUS REVIEW

The authors' identities are kept secret from the reviewers in this journal, which also employs double anonymized review. You can find more details on our website. Please send the following information in a separate email to help with this:

Title page (with author information): Title, authors' names, affiliations, acknowledgements, any Declaration of Interest statements, complete address for the corresponding author, including an email address, and other pertinent information should all be included.

Anonymized manuscript (no author details): No identifying information, such as the authors' names or affiliations, should be included in the main body of the publication (including the references, figures, tables, and any acknowledgements).
